BURGLARS WORK IN CACHE.

Three Business Houses in Wellsville Suffer From Visit of Midnight Artisans. Logan, July 28.-Wellsville, in the outh end of Cache valley, was the cene of great excitement this mornng, the cause of which will create considerably more than the traditional line days' wonder, when it was discovered that three of the town's most prosperous business houses—the Wells-ville Co-op, Farmer's Mercantile Union and the saloon, had been burglarized in genuine professional style, and that incidentally Uncle Sam was loser of some postal funds stored for safety in was this that was burglarized, evidently by professionals, the combination being blown off and the doors and vault contents badly shattered.

The money stolen was not a large sum for such an extensive business house, amounting in all to $130, about half of which had been deposited by the postmaster for safe keeping. The greatest loss, which it has been impossible so far to accurately ascertain, lay in the fact that many notes and securities were either blown or torn to pieces, and in damage to the books. Entrance to the store was effected by means of skeleton keys. A number of steel boxes in the vault were broken open and some of their contents carried off or destroyed.

At the Farmers' Mercantile Co.'s store the door of the safe was shattered, evidently by a heavy charge. Fortunately there was but about $25 in money in the safe, but, as in the case of the Co-op, books and valuable papers were injured and destroyed. At this store the door was broken open. At the saloon one lock had been turned with a skeleton key, but failing to open the other it was broken. Only some change, whisky and eigars were taken in this case.

Having completed a strenuous night's labor the burglars "silently stole away." whither, deponent sayeth not, but it is a safe venture that it was not local talent. A lady residing on the road leading from Mendon saw four men welking toward Wellwille.

Portland, Ore., July 28.—A dispatch from Vancouver, Wash., to the Telegram, tells of the death by drowning of three tells of the death by drowning of three young ladies in the Columbia river yesterday afternoon off Government island. A fishing party of five young women left Fishers landing yesterday in a row boat and after arriving at the island and resting for a period, three of the young women made up their minds to go swimming. Wading out in what appeared to be shallow water Edna Fisher, 19; Lillian Ziegler, aged 28, and May Ziegler, aged 18, discovered that they had struck one of the numerous steep clay banks which abound in the vicinity.

Aware of the danger they attempted to reach shore, but had gone too far and began to slip down the steep bank into deep water. Their struggles attracted the attention of Mrs. Timmons and Miss Lulu Ziegler, but knowing the futility of attempted rescue, neither of them knowing how to swim, Mrs. Timmons by a great effort restrained Miss Lulu from going to a sure death. A rescue party went to the scene and after repeated efforts by a strong swimmer, the three bodies were brought to the surface. Although every effort was made to resuscitate the young women, life was extinct.
